To Chairman Kevin J Martin:

This letter is to inform you of the important and significant contributions that CBS Radio stations make to their communities. Camp Fire USA is a non profit 501-C3 agency that serves at-risk youth. Our mission is to create caring and confident youth and future leaders. We depend on the support of the entire community in order to reach as many children as possible. The reality is that we cannot achieve our mission alone.

I am inclined to agree with CBS Radio station's comments made to the FCC on April 28 in the "Localism" proceeding. More specifically, that the FCC's proposed re-regulatory initiatives are not in the public interest. The FCC is proposing, among other things, to reinstate its pre-1987 main studio rule requiring studios to be attended on a 24/7 basis, to adopt license renewal programming minimums, and to resurrect the concept of local "community advisory boards."

The contributions of CBS have been invaluable. They have donated millions of dollars worth of airtime for public service announcements in support of community and charitable causes. They have spearheaded fundraising efforts in order to promote community programs such as Camp Fire amongst so many others. They continuously recognize and support the needs of the community and the listeners, giving so generously of their time.

In the case of Camp Fire, WYCD in Detroit has sponsored and hosted an annual golf fundraiser going above and beyond to ensure a quality and successful event. Their support has enabled Camp Fire to send inner city youth to summer camp – an experience that most of us take for granted. Their continued support allows us to teach children about the environment, to teach them life management skills, and to provide them with a safe place to go after school. The re-regulatory initiatives will negatively impact the ability of CBS to continue to make such important and purposeful contributions to our community.

Sincerely,

Michelle Koch
